source of safety to the country, for him to know that he is not a great man. When a man begins to feel that he is the only one who can lead in the Republic, he is guilty of treason to the spirit of our institutions.

Harding's Death a Shock

"Beside Reports So Reassuring I Believed All Danger Past"

After President Harding was seriously stricken, although I noted that some of the newspapers at once sent representatives to be near me at the home of my father in Plymouth, Vermont, the official reports which I received from his bedside soon became so reassuring that I believed all danger past.

On the night of August 2, 1923, I was awakened by my father coming up the stairs calling my name. I noticed that his voice trembled. As the only times I had ever observed that before were when death had visited our family, I knew something of the gravest nature had occurred.

His emotion was partly due to the knowledge that a man whom he had met and liked was gone, partly to the feeling that most possess all of our citizens when the life of their President is taken from them.

But he must have been moved also by the thought of the many sacrifices he had made to place me where I was, the 25-mile drives in storms and in zero weather over our mountain roads to carry me to the academy, and all the tenderness and love that he lavished upon me in the 35 years since the death of my mother, in the hope that I might sometime rise to a position of importance, which he now saw realized.

Prayer First

Asked God for Power to Serve People

He had been the first to address me as President of the United States. It was the culmination of the lifelong desire of a father for his son.

He placed in my hands an official report and told me that President Harding had just passed away. My wife and I at once dressed.

Before leaving the room I knelt down and, with the same prayer which I have since approached the altar of the church, asked God to bless the American people and give me power to serve them.

My first thought was to express my sympathy for those who had been bereaved, and after that was done to attempt to reassure the country with the knowledge that I proposed no sweeping displacement of the men then in office, and that there were to be no violent changes in the administration of affairs. As soon as I had dispatched a telegram to Mr. Harding, I therefore issued a short public statement declaratory of that purpose.

Taking Oath

Bible Not Officially Used in Vermont

Meantime, I had been examining the Constitution to determine what might be necessary for qualifying by taking the oath of office. It is not clear that any additional oath is required beyond what is taken by the Vice-President when he is sworn into office. It is the same form as that taken by the President.

Having found this form in the Constitution, I had it set up on the typewriter and the oath was administered by my father, in his capacity as a notary public, an office he had held for a great many years.

The oath was taken in what we always called the sitting-room, with the light of the kerosene lamp, which was the most modern form of lighting that had then reached the neighborhood. The father which had belonged to my mother lay on the table at my hand. It was not officially used, as it is not the arrangements of plans for the funeral.

I issued the usual proclamation. The Washington services were held in the rotunda of the Capitol, followed by a simple service and interment at Marion, Ohio, which I attended with the Cabinet and a large number of officers of the Government.

Mrs. Harding

"Her Bearing Won Universal Commendation"

The nation was grief-stricken. Especially noticeable was the deep sympathy everyone felt for Mrs. Harding. Through all this distressing period her bearing won universal commendation. Her attitude of sympathy and affection toward Mrs. Coolidge and myself was an especial consolation to us.

The first Sunday after reaching Washington we attended services, as we were accustomed to do, at the First Congregational Church. Although I had been rather constant in my attendance, I had never joined the church.

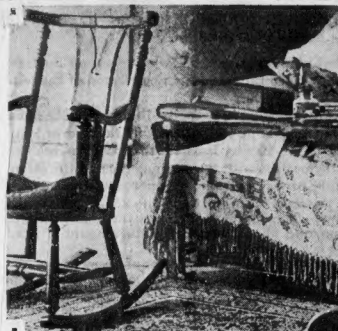

While there had been religious services, there was no organized church society near my boyhood home.

Among other things, I had some fear as to my ability to set that example which I always felt ought to denote the life of a church member. I am inclined to think now that this was a counsel of darkness.

First Communion

"Church Voted Me Into Its Membership"

The first service happened to come on communion day. Our pastor, Dr. Pierce, occupied the pulpit, and, as he can under the practice of the Congregational Church, and always does, because of his own very tolerant attitude, he invited all those who believed in the Christian faith, whether church members or not, to join in partaking of the communion.

For the first time I accepted this invitation, which I later learned he had observed, and in a few days without any intimation to me that it was to be done, considering this to be a sufficient public profession of my faith, the church voted me into its membership.

This declaration of their belief in me was a great satisfaction.

Had I been approached in the usual way to join the church after I became President, I should have feared that such action might appear to be a ploy and should have hesitated to accept. From what might have been a misguided conception I was thus saved by some intimation which I had not anticipated.

But if I had not voluntarily gone to church and partaken of communion, this blessing would not have come to me.

Fate bestows its rewards on those who put themselves in the proper attitude to receive them.

STIMSON SENDS FOR HIS PET PARROT

Washington, April 1 (AP)—The State Department dropped international affairs for a brief time today to deal with the case of a Chinese-speaking parrot in the Philippines.

The Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, ordered cablegrams dispatched ordering that "The Old Soak," the secretary's pet parrot, while he was Governor-General of the Philippines with the greatest possible speed. "The Old Soak" speaks no English and just what he says in Chinese no one has been able to figure out. It is a story that Mrs. Stimson laid down the rule before leaving Manila for "The Old Soak" would not be a member of the secretary's party in coming to Washington.

A letter from a friend to the secretary in the Philippines revealed that "The Old Soak" was lonely; that he no longer wished to visit from a person's toes to his shoulder, a favorite trick taught him by Mr. Stimson.

Secretary Stimson was so touched by the letter that he immediately cabled orders that the parrot be sent to Washington.

At the White House grounds were thrown open to a crowd of laughing, shouting youngsters for the annual Easter Monday egg-rolling.

Although eggs were dark and many threatened, several hundred children scrambled about the lawn. Children of members of the White House staff and other officials were greeted by Mrs. Hoover in the White House before joining the crowd outside.

At an unusual feature, Mrs. Hoover had two maypoles to present to the youngsters in person. The President being busy at his desk, but both planned to look on at intervals during the day.

Only children, and adults with children, were admitted to the grounds in the morning, but as usual, a welcome was arranged for everyone in the afternoon, with the Marine Band giving a concert.

Death of Herrick Brings Grief to Lindy

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 1.—"Lindy" was a saddened figure today, grieving for the loss of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, the first man to officially take the transatlantic liner under his wing after the conclusion of the historic flights from New York to Paris.

"I am deeply grieved at the loss of Ambassador Herrick," said Col. Lindbergh stated, "he had been more than a friend to me."

"I do not believe that an individual ever commanded greater love and respect from the people of two countries."

Ambassador Herrick met and conducted "Lindy" through the program of receptions that followed the flying Colone's arrival in Paris.

Knowledge that the Massachusetts aviator was looking for him in December caused a tear on his health, he said.

When Bradstreet was explaining his friendship with Mrs. Waller at the altimeter trial, he told of being her business guide, giving her $5000 from the investment of $125,000 left by her husband, Sumner Waller.

In contrast with his repulse as a financial adviser, then, his testimony today was that he was worth $15,000 in a sales agency and bank owned by Mrs. Waller.

He also had to cash in on his life insurance policies, he said, and he borrowed $5000 from the brother of which he used $3500 to pay his wife's separate support installment to January 1, 1928. Another debt he said is $17,000 to a Washington money lender.

FINDELECTION

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—The House special campaign expenditure committee, in a report today, recommended the Department of Justice make a searching investigation of the election in Hidalgo county, Texas, last November, which it said was "rained with wholesale fraud in various forms."

The committee, headed by Representative Lehigh, Republican, New Jersey, in its finding declared the charges made by Harry Hays, Citizens Republic Committee candidate, against Representative John Garner, Democrat, Texas, largely untrue.

The committee, however, did not attain in its investigation. The report said it was the opinion of the committee that the throwing out of returns from Hidalgo county was "a gross and flagrant violation of the laws of the United States" and that the "volting of thousands of Mexican ballots or naturalized Mexicans for whom no ballot money had been paid" was "a gross and flagrant violation of the laws of the United States."

STIMSON WILL DEFEND BOAT SINKING

WASHINGTON, April 1 (INS)—Secretary of State Stimson returned to his desk today after an Easter weekend in New York, prepared to defend the sinking of the Canadian schooner, the Algonquin, off the coast guard in the Gulf of Mexico, March 22, on the ground that it was just under the British anti-run smuggling treaty.

The Treasury Department, through Secretary Mellon, justified the act under the tariff law of 1912, which gave the coast guard jurisdiction over waters to a 12-mile limit.

It is understood the State Department has not accepted the tariff act as applying to the case, but will depend on a clause in the new treaty giving the British Great Britain right to permit the coast guard to search for run-runners with one hour's standing distance from shore.

Woman Drives Holdup Auto

Chicago, April 1—A woman sitting calmly at the wheel as her band companion blew off the top of the head of Harvey Winter, a payroll manager, at a construction job in Riverside, just as calmly she eluded the pursuit of other cars after the bandit had seized $700 in money.

The holdup car's arrival was timed to a second by the woman driver, just before Winter reached the car. She then drove off and caused him to halt. Then the bandit stepped out, and without a word, shot at the messenger.

Real estate values are reported steadily rising in Chicago. It was reported that the value of the city's real estate was up $100,000,000 in the last year.

BETTY FINDS FIRST SCHOOL DAY HARDEST

KINDERGARTEN
RULES COME
HARD TO HER

By HELEN COOLIDGE
Colleges, it seems to Betty and to me, are altogether over-estimated as educational institutions. It's really kindergartens that turn your world upside down for you, disillusion you, and then make amends by opening up new horizons before your enlightened eyes. Where but in a kindergarten could you learn in one forenoon that big girls mustn't bully small boys, that nobody loves you just because you're you, that words can't take the place of good works, that shipping to music is a fine art, that shoemakers work indoors not outdoors, that hens aren't naturally purple—and that red crayon, even the best red crayon, isn't good for little ladies to eat?

Betty and I had our first kindergarten experience at school on East Highland ave., Melrose. SCHOOLROOM BRIGHT
That was where we met, in fact. Betty was newly enrolled as a pupil, and I was just visiting. The school room was bright and attractive, with whitewashed walls and colored curtains. Everywhere I looked there were children. Some of them were at the sandpits, some in a playhouse, and two little girls were sea-sawing. It was their free play time when they could choose their own games. The youngsters at the sandpits were too busy to speak. There were two boys and two girls. Each had a pail, a shovel and a little sieve. "They never get tired of playing with sand," said the teacher. "They seem to enjoy the feel of it in their hands, even when they get it back from a summer at the seashore."

"Give me your shovel, Johnny," she said, and without waiting for an answer she pulled it away from him. THE FIRST LESSON
"O, you mustn't, Betty," said the two other girls, and they looked at her with horror that she should return the shovel to the little boy who was staring at her, open-mouthed. Betty watched the others playing for a moment, then finding herself ignored, she set about inventing a new game in which she stirred up marbles with the sand and tried to put the mixture through a sieve. "It didn't work very well, and she soon grew tired of it. "Don't you love me?" she asked the little girl beside her. "No," said the little girl, without even looking up from the sandpile. "Why not?" Betty was almost crying now.

"Because you don't live with me."

ROBBERIES UNMISTAKINGLY

Westport, Ct., April 1.—Two Waterbury youths who gave a pair of strangers a "lift" to their automobiles in the hands of State police today as material witnesses to an alleged robbery, although they were absolved from implication in the robbery itself after having been arrested. The two they picked up, James Brocco, 22, of Watery, N. J., and William Foster, 27, of Sand Brook, N. Y., were the cause of the police stopping the automobile at Watery. Foster and Brocco confessed robbing a drug store in Southport several days ago, and the Watery police turned them and their benefactors, John Manickie, 18, and James Brunell, 20, both of Watery, over to the State police here.

Foster and Brocco were charged with burglary, but the Watery youths were finally absolved from complicity. They were held as material witnesses, however, as Foster and Brocco, when they accepted the ride, had brought merchandise taken in the robbery into the car. Passengers Taken Off Ship in Crash

Nichols and Fin. Com., Drys and Wets Bury Hatchets on April 1

Luncheon and probe circles were stirred to their depths today when Mayor Nichols appeared as the honored guest at a luncheon given by Chairman John P. C. Dowling and members of the Finance Commission. There was excitement at City Hall when the news arrived, but the mayor himself was calm about and fended off inquiries of reporters with quip and quirk. "Well, here's one expense bill that will go through without a growl," he said. "They won't catch the administration napping this time."

Mayor Nichols gave a buttered toast at the luncheon. "I don't know where the city of Boston would be if the Finance Commission failed to function," he said. "Why, it would be in Boston," said Chairman Dowling with that ready wit for which members of the Fin. Com. are noted. The prisoner ate a hearty luncheon. Another incident of the day, somewhat off the beaten track, was the deluging of Atty-Gen. Joseph E. Warner with pledges sent in by more than 50,000 Bay State citizens who gave their word not to buy liquor for at least a month, as requested by the State's chief prosecuting officer. "We'll accept any given quantity," some of the pledges read, "but we won't buy any."

"Your idea is noble," one man wrote. "Program coming in line; request 'Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes' said another pledge which was telegraphed. Along the same line, Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley issued orders to his headquarters tonight to cease using nightstickmen in effecting entrance to buildings being raided. "Bartenders and speakeasy proprietors are people," said the superintendent, "and they should be treated as such. Let no man able to hold up against the police department even one last bit of official churlishness."

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney-General, notified officials at the local federal prohibition headquarters not to make further arrests under the Jones law. "It is a complete failure and it should be scrapped," she said. At the same time, the Constitutional Liberty League, representing the "wets," and the Anti-Saloon League, representing the "drys," announced they had buried the hatchet and had agreed to work out liquor problems as "one big family."

Today is April first. Beware of jokes, pocketbooks with strings attached and messages to call jills, zoes, et cetera.

AGE PENSION BILL'S CALLED 'JUDAS KISS'

"Judas kiss" was the term flung today by Wendell F. Thore, assistant fighter for a non-contributor old-age pension, at a bill to establish a bureau of old-age pension in the State Public Welfare Department. Thore said the bill would take into consideration the ability of relatives to support the needy parent. Those charged with the bill, heard by the House Committee on Rules, was introduced solely to defeat the proposed non-contributory pension law.

"I stand with organized labor for a real non-contributory old-age pension law," he said, "and I am willing to accept this mean substitute. "No judge or other pensioner under our government pension system is asked his or her children to support them. Why should citizens pay for such pensioners be asked to sustain and have their children interfered with under such a pauper state system?"

Now she is employed by the managers of Fairfax Airport, Kansas City, as the hostess of the airport. She has been provided quarters at the field, fitted out in a luxurious manner and a Packard sedan at her disposal, for the free benefit of those pilots who and their journey here and wish transportation to a hotel, for those who are just "flying through" and want to pay a call or two in the city.

New York, April 1 (AP)—Clifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, was bound for the South today aboard his yacht on a 15,000-mile cruise planned 40 years ago. It is planned to collect specimens of plant and marine life of the Caribbean and South seas.

"Can I wear the new ones, please Mother?"

It's a great treat to them to wear their new shoes... and they're so careful not to get a speck of dust on them. That happy state, however, lasts only until the first polish of newness is off. Then—scuff, kick, slide, scrunch. Children's shoes get mighty rough wear.

If they are Coward shoes they can stand it for much longer periods. Coward shoes for boys and girls are made of fine sturdy leathers. They are planned for long hard wear. And, more important than durability, even, they are scientifically designed to help the growing foot to grow properly. Black and tan, high or low.

'TIRED OF LIFE,' BOY WRITES IN SUICIDE NOTE

Springfield, April 1—'Tired of life' because his younger brother was taken on a holiday trip to New Jersey while he stayed home alone, George Fleming, 15-year-old West Springfield high school student, is believed to have committed suicide by leaping off the Chicopee bridge into the Connecticut river.

A note, signed by young Fleming, was found pinned by a jackknife blade to a timber of the bridge. The boy said that he was 'tired of life' and was going to shoot himself. Then jump into the stream.

Near the note was found a 27 caliber revolver containing five unexploded shells, each of which bore gun's trigger had been pulled repeatedly without effect.

At the young student's home, Hayes ave., West Springfield, police found another note, addressed to the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Fleming, which referred to taking a younger son, John, Jr., with them to New Jersey.

George wrote that he had sold papers on the street to contribute to the family's support and that he thought that he should have been one to make the New Jersey trip.

Police began dragging the river today.

Modish Skirts Longer, N. Y. Parade Shows

New York, April 1 (AP)—The consensus of fashion experts who watched Easter parades is that modish skirts are just a trifle longer.

Bowing to a recent decree from Paris most of the more fashionable paraders along Fifth ave. wore dresses that came an inch or two below the knee. A few were emotionally longer. However, there also were many that were ultra short.

Shoes were as variegated that often they struck the eye bared the other components of the costume. Purple, green, pink, beige and steel blue shades were the rule. Lavender kid and polka-dotted footwear proved startling. Repulsive skirts also were popular.

Most of the women had costumes in which black, relieved by bright dashes of white, predominated. All shades of brown and the new blue found favor. Loosely woven tweeds, mixtures in brown and heather, mixtures were among the smartest ensembles.

Hats took a distinct air toward the novel. Their variety of shapes and their brilliant colors, ranging from ascriet to a greenish yellow called albatross, immediately caught the eye. Modish skull caps, showing navy a wisp of hair were popular.

Heavy gold and silver chains and clanking bracelets added a note of finality to most costumes.

The men also made quite a showing. Many wore high silk striped trousers, cutaway coats, gray

Australians Hunt Four Missing Fliers

Sydney, N. S. W., April 1 (AP)—Much anxiety is felt here for Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, his pilot, Charles T. Uim and a crew of two, reported to have made a forced landing 100 miles from Wyndham, on the northwest coast of Australia, while flying from Sydney on the first stage of a flight to England. Rescue planes have been sent to search for the airman.

Dozen Tenants Led Out During Blaze

Springfield, April 1—A dozen persons were led to safety and a score others fled to the street today during a fire in the basement of a five-story apartment building in Springfield. Although the fire was confined to the basement, smoke filled the hallways and upper floors making it difficult for tenants of upper floors to reach the street unaided.

INCREASED TAX SAVS ATTY. LYNE

Deductions on earned incomes up to $30,000 should be doubled, from 25 to 50 per cent, by the Federal government, in the opinion of Daniel J. Lyne, former assistant district attorney of Suffolk County, who is now a successful Boston lawyer.

He made this statement while endorsing the movement which is sweeping the country in favor of a downward revision of the Federal income tax on earned incomes. This movement is being supported by Hearst newspapers throughout the land.

"It seems to me to be a fair policy to tax the incomes of the man who is supported in idleness at least twice the amount that the income of the worker is taxed," added Atty. Lyne.

"I am sure that one householder has an income of $12,000 a year which he himself earns each year, either by way of salary or from carrying on an independent business or from the practice of a profession. His neighbor has an income of $18,000 from the sale of bonds which he has inherited.

"The principle that the first man should not be compelled to pay as largely an income tax as his idle neighbor seems to be firmly grounded in reasons of natural justice, and is already recognized in the Federal income tax law. I believe that an even sharper distinction should be made in the taxation of earned and unearned incomes.

Under the present Federal income tax law the first $5000 of income is conclusively presumed to have been "earned," whether it comes from a business activity or whether it is received from invested securities.

"I would favor any alternative arrangement that might lessen the burden that the tax upon the income of our moderately successful professional men places upon whom I believe to be the men charged with the protection of the liberties and property of the nation."

HUBBARD IN PRISON AS WARDEN DEPARTS

Atlanta, April 1 (AP)—In the midst of protest by prisoners, who beat upon their cell doors, whistled and shouted, John W. Snook late tonight left his post as warden of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, carrying a "receipt in full" for all inmates, records, and Government property at the institution.

Snook had been popular with the prisoners, and as the time of his retirement arrived under the terms of his resignation, effective at midnight, the inmates set up a noisy protest. Jailers threatened force before the men were quieted.

On his last day in office, the warden made public a letter he had written Atty-Gen. Mitchell, in which he defended his administration and expressed the hope that the practice of "planting" department of justice agents in the prison be abolished.

He said the letter was in reply to a telegram from the Attorney-General in which the warden was reprimanded for permitting newspapermen to inspect the prison and reporting the conditions they found. In the letter, Snook said he had read the article and was sorry the facts contained therein were secured from the annual report of all Federal institutions published by the department of justice."

Levitzi Given Warm Reception
Mitska Levitzi's concert in Symphony Hall was a courageous and laudable effort on the part of his managers to build up the Boston following of a first-rate pianist. But Easter Sunday is not the most propitious time for attracting people to a City Hall, and it was not surprising to find only a small audience in attendance.

This audience was, however, extraordinarily enthusiastic.

Sign This and Cut Your Taxes

To the Congress of the United States:
THE undersigned respectfully urges that Congress give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all taxes on earned incomes.

This is urged because in many instances earners of salaries, wages, fees or commissions for personal services have only a few years of good incomes, and prior to and after that period have substantially smaller incomes.

Their period of better earnings, which might give them a chance to accumulate some savings, is heavily taxed. Labor in general, clerical workers, salesmen, lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects, journalists, accountants, actors, musicians, singers and members of other professions are in the same plight in the matter of earned incomes, as compared with earnings on capital.

The use of my name on a petition to Congress is hereby granted.

FLORAL DISPLAY OUTDOORS FASHION PARADE IN COLOR

Smart Set Out in Force on Back Bay Thoroughfares

CROCUSES THRUST THEIR brave golden yellow and bright blues up through brown earth to make radiant Common-wealth ave. grass plots yesterday. And in certain broad windows of certain grand mansions in the justly renowned avenue jonquills fresh as the spring, crystal white lilies, bright hydrangeas and azaleas mingled gloriously. Perhaps they hoped to match the joyous colors that so beautifully sunny an Easter as 1929's would usually bring forth on the parade. In truth they far outstripped for variety and color the noisier promenade of the elect, for strange to relate, Boston femininity, while it is relatively interesting in Easter finery, was not so much the peacock as the thrush.

AN EXCEPTION TO THE LACK of color might be offered in the attractive bride, Mrs. Philip Webster Smith, whose coat and capeau were delicately fawnlike and who looked brightened on the smart world she knew so intimately in the Corsetti Clark days so recently behind her. Mr. Smith, Mrs. Englemann, her grandmother, and Mrs. Smith's brother, John Dudley Clark, Jr., were greeted and greeted almost continuously as they did a turn up and down. Mrs. Charles Terry Collins, more recently a bride, was gaily trousseaued in the smartest of Easterlike finery.

OF COURSE, MISS PRISCILLA RHODES, bride-elect, has a charming trousseau complete to the last detail. But what bride could be induced to don before the solemn day itself, any of those delicate gathered to amaze a waiting world when she is a matron. Miss Rhodes has a wardrobe all embracing. It included a striking velvet coat and cascade-like capeau for her Easter Sunday adornment and added a note to the parade as she appeared in the throng. Miss Rhodes had Arthur L. Coburn, her fiancé, for the promenade.

GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER, Jr. was the doting parent with some of the small Gardners to plot the avenue's snail pace parade. Miss Frances Braggiotti was springlike in a wide hat and -outfit coat, and looked her usual radiant self as she, with Clayton Johns at one elbow and John Davis Lodge at the other, moved smartly with the Easter throngs. Miss Braggiotti and Mr. Lodge are to be sure wedding principals—and will do the fatal march to organ music sometime in July. Miss Eleanor Mason's spring garb was the essence of chic—Miss Mason has a charming wardrobe, which she wears smartly. Yesterday her small sisters were with her.

The turnout yesterday of nobles from many parts of the country was brilliant and classy, Hub representatives being easily among the leaders.

As a picture, trundled the smaller one in its perambulator and pater plotted the little son. Charles K. Cummings, with his daughter, Miss Evelyn Cummings, was the picture of Easter Day propriety as the masculine one in—with top hat and cutaway and the regulation boutonniere. Mrs. J. K. Harding was trip in black that was smartest itself in line and design and had added chic from her corsage of gardenias and freesia. Her son, Edgar Harding, was with her.

UNVARIABLY DO THE RENE PAINEs more southward when it is the thing to do. And invariably is that fine old record, White Sulphur Springs, on the way to tender green. Mrs. Williams has been spending her usual number of weeks in the South and has been in the Carolinas. Mrs. Edward Legge of Boston st., Brookline, and her niece, Miss Barbara Johnson, have just come back to town from a swing about north and south.

SHOWING THE WONDERS OF America to a visitor from Almon is Mrs. Legge's pleasant reason for traveling abroad and home. Recently she and Miss Johnson, who comes from Birmingham, England, have been to the great falls and soon depart by motor for New York and Philadelphia for a round of visits. Miss Johnson sails to April for England. The John L. Saltanovs have been at the Hotel

Club Institute to Be Held Here Thursday

Club Institute Thursday! Nothing short of an actual meeting creates the same happy anticipation that this momentous event always does in Massachusetts women's clubs.

And since this is to be the last institute of the year provision has been made for seating a record crowd at the Hotel Vendome.

Informal, neighborly, instructive, these "talkfests" are one of the most popular of all Federation activities.

Happy are the club presidents invited to speak for five minutes each at these "experience meetings."

"The idea never was born but just grew—like Topsy," asserts Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, chairman. "At our first club institute, two years ago, we placed 10 chairs, hardly expecting them to be filled. Forty-seven club presidents from all over the State came before the session opened."

This number was doubled at the second institute, and since then the average attendance has been 200 each month.

Among the speakers will be the following club presidents: Mrs. George F. Nodd, Auburn, Mass.; Mrs. Herman C. Peterson, West Roxbury; Mrs. Robert R. McCauley, Newton, Upper Falls; Mrs. Hans W. Miller, Concord; Mrs. F. W. R. Bradford, Boston; Mrs. Charles W. Valentine, Newton; Mrs. Arthur W. Taylor, Old Colony of South Weymouth.

The SILENT AGE by S. FOWLER WRIGHT

A SIX-DAY STORY

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

PRERUDE
To an observer from a distant planet the whole movement would have appeared trivial. There was probably no point at which land either sank or rose to one five-thousandth of the earth's diameter. But water and land were so nearly at one level that the slightest tremor was sufficient either to drain or to flood them.

The surface trembled, and was still, and the Himalayas were untroubled, and the great tableland of Central Asia was still behind them, but the tide lapped the foothills to the south, and India was no more, and China a forgotten dream.

Southern Europe was gone, and Germany a desolation that the seas had swept away. Ocean covered the plain of the Mississippi, and broke against the barriers of the Rockies. The next day it receded, leaving the naked wrecks of a civilization that a night had ended.

In England, as in Europe generally, the intervening day had been used in attempts at escape. When the horror of the next night was over, Scotland, all Wales, and all the heights of Northern England had disappeared forever. Only, by some freak of fate, some portions of the midland plain were above the ocean level, with some impaired fertility, and some life upon them.

Within a week, the sheep had collected on the high open fields; and a horde of horses had gathered in the meadows of a river which still flowed in its shortened course.

Herds of cattle lurked in the woods, and splashed in shallow pools; the pigs, too, were in the woods.

Men fared more hardly. It was upon their artificial environment that the storm spent its force. There were many thousands whom this environment destroyed, quite literally, beneath its falling debris.

CHAPTER I
MAY 21 was Wednesday. That steady night, Martin Weston, assistant lawyer, who dived with his wife Helen and their two children in comfortable circumstances, his wife and the telephone which had rung insistently long after the family had retired. A voice was speaking as he raised the receiver.

'Bryan's Girl' Early in Congress Seat

By Marjorie Dalrymple, Associated Press Staff Writer.
Washington, April 1 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, who prefers to win recognition on her own merit rather than as the daughter of William Jennings Bryan, has spent a flustered two weeks preparing herself to represent the fourth Florida district in the 71st Congress.

She has painstakingly compiled a list of the pressing needs of her district, gathered during the months she spent in campaigning up and down the eastern coast of Florida, and through an extensive correspondence with State leaders. With this in hand, she has had one of the heads of government departments in a "not a lot of active" role in the Federal agency, the one which might help solve the problems.

By comparing the two she has found out the needs for which in no Federal aid has been provided and there will be points on which she will try to engineer legislation.

An innovation she has established is the office of a home secretary at a point very nearly in the center of her long stretch of coast line that comprises her district. This secretary is in close touch with the residents, makes frequent trips to the regional electric utility companies, big cities, and even to scattered islands off the coast, one of which is 60 miles from the mainland.

He reports directly to Mrs. Owen, and keeps her constantly in touch with conditions in her home state.

Students Work Through College
Boulder, Col., April 1 (INRS)—Students at Colorado University take their way the best they can. Figures released by the dean of men and dean of women disclose that 400 of the 2001 students are actually employed in trades varying from banking and bookbinding to being private secretaries and upping at the local telephone exchange.

Twenty-four per cent of the total number of women either earn a part or all of their college expenses, while 20 per cent of the 2001 men included on the enrollment list do so to earn their living.

State Prison Stabber Is Placed in Solitary

ATTACKED PRISONER TO A FELLOW CONVICT 6 YEARS

In Dad's Old Job

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, who represents a Florida district in the next Congress.

"Fancy Louis" Weiner, long term convict, was in solitary confinement at State prison today, for attacking a fellow prisoner to a fellow convict 6 years.

Conductor "Tommy" Lyon, veteran of 41 years' service on trains in and out of his native town, Marbledale, led the list of loyal employees pensioned today by the Boston & Maine railroad.

"Tommy" is now 76 years old. He entered the railroad service as a brakeman on the Marblehead branch at the age of 18. He retired only a few months ago.

Next oldest employee on today's list was Engineer George H. Fursch, of Danvers, veteran of 57 years on the job. He is 75 years old. He retired last winter.

Eight pensions in all were granted today. Thus far this year there have been 41 employees pensioned by the Boston & Maine, bringing the total list to 241.

GUARD SAYS ATTACK
Weiner, who had attempted to hide himself in the crowd of convicts after the stabbing was seized by a guard who had witnessed the attack, and was immediately placed in solitary.

The stabbing was done so quietly that most of the prisoners had no knowledge of it, and there was little excitement.

Weiner and Leach have been in prison since their trial for the robbery of a diamond valued at $100,000 from the Skinner jewelry store in Boston in 1924, several years ago. Both participated in the robbery, became embittered when, through a police ruse, each was led to believe the other a "squawker."

OO SPECIAL REPORT
Deputy Commissioner of Corrections, Howard Bagley and the incident was not of sufficient importance to warrant a special report.

With 800 prisoners in the yard at one time, the incident was reported to be minor alterations," he said. "Weiner, with the stump of a shoe knife, struck Leach in the back. The wound was a slight one and Leach was back at work in ten minutes. The two men had exchanged with the other prisoners right along and there had been no previous trouble."

In Court on Charge of Tippy Driving

Lawrence, April 1—Peter Stewart, who was convicted, faced the local court today on charges of drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Stewart was placed under arrest by Patrolman Joseph J. Sullivan on Saturday night, after his suspensions had been aroused by the man's method of driving.

FIND DEATH GUN; WIFE MISSING

Calais, Me., April 1.—With a Canadian posse and American police still hunting Mrs. Lena Graham of Milford, N. B., a 38-calibre revolver, believed to be the one with which her husband, Fred Graham, was killed in bed early Saturday, was found today.

The weapon, revealed by melting snow, was picked up by Miss Catherine Ingram of Milford, only six yards from the house in which Graham was killed, and in a path-way leading to the woods.

One unexploded shell remained in the revolver.

Police immediately abandoned their search of the St. Croix River on the international boundary and returned to the Canadian side to form on the Canadian side to search the woods for Mrs. Graham, who is believed to be wearing only a nightgown, fur coat and overcoat.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, who represents a Florida district in the next Congress.

Jones Law Applies Even to President, Says Senator

Washington, April 1 (INRS)—Senator Wesley L. Jones (Rep.) of Washington, author of the drastic prohibition bill which bears his name, had this to say today concerning the plight in which two dry congressmen, who voted for the act, find themselves:

"The Jones-Stauffer law is applicable to all, even to the President of the United States. I cannot discuss a member of the House, but the law applies to everybody, to officials no matter what position they occupy."

Councilman Held in Northampton Crash

Northampton, April 1—Raymond W. Constantine, 36, of 11 Williams st., a councilman from Ward 2, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness following the collision of a large sedan, owned and driven by Michael S. Gnatik of Hadley, on Maple st.

Joseph Gnatik, also of Hadley, a passenger in the sedan, suffered severe cuts on his right arm, and was taken to Dickinson Hospital.

Johnny Blaisdell, three, of Wrentham, had a fighting chance for life today at the Boston Children's Hospital, thanks to the efficiency of state police who made it possible for him to be whisked over 22 miles of crowded road in exactly 25 minutes.

Johnny suffered a fractured skull and a broken leg in an accident near the Blaisdell home, South at Wrentham. He was sitting in the rear seat of the family automobile when his father, Chester Blaisdell, averted the engine suddenly.

Johnny was pitched through the car door to the ground. Dr. C. E. Rodrick of Wrentham, having examined the boy, ordered his instant removal to the hospital. Heavy traffic on the road made a speedy trip impossible without special arrangement. Dr. Rodrick appealed to Corporal McGuinness of the Wrentham state police squad. The latter furnished Patrolman Timothy J. Mahoney as motorcycle escort.

Braves Confident

By NICK FLATLEY

Miami, Fla., April 1.—That air of confidence which has been so strangely lacking the greater part of this spring has suddenly come to the Braves.

The athletes and strategists are getting optimistic. It makes no difference about the results of the daily games. The Braves are confident.

MEET THE NEW BRAVES

No. 2—HARRY SEIBOLD

By NICK FLATLEY

It is likely that while Tom McArdle is in Boston he will confer with Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, and Dan Carroll, who guides the pugilistic destiny of Jim Malone.

Buckley is already under contract with the New York Garden, but the question of an opponent has to be ironed out. Present plans call for Sharkey to meet the winner of the Pauline-Schmeling bout in a title skirmish in September.

McArdle is anxious to feature Maloney at one of his outdoor boxing shows in New York during the coming summer. The Garden Corporation has leased the Yankee stadium and Polo grounds and must put on some major weight attractions to meet the rental requirements at these two places.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young, and to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there is no other way. A bilious complexion—dark rings under your eyes—yellowish skin—sallow cheeks—your face—full eyes with no sparkle—Your liver and bowels are ninety per cent of all sickness comes from.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, prescribes this tablet compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to set the bowels in motion. It is a new way to save to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards says: "Give this compound to your children. It is gentle in their action yet always effective. It is the only agent that natural buoyancy which all should have. It is the only agent that clears the system of impurities."

Dr. Edwards says: "Give this compound to your olive color."
